Evaluation report of teachers and courses Sumer Semester

1. Report from the evaluation of the courses and teaching of the Faculty of Islamic Studies

The Dean's Office of the Faculty of Islamic Studies, through the Quality Coordinator of FSI, has distributed questionnaires for the course and teachers evaluation in the Faculty of Islamic Studies. Based on the questionnaires for the evaluation of courses and teachers, which were completed by the students, the evaluation report was compiled. The evaluation report was compiled by the Quality Assurance Officer of the Faculty of Islamic Studies, and this report contains all relevant data such as: Average evaluation of courses and teachers at the program level; the average of the teacher and the courses; Assessment of reliability.

The evaluated courses and teachers are:

2. Average evaluation of courses and teachers at the program level

During the academic year 2023/2024 of the summer semester, 2 study programs were evaluated at the Faculty of Islamic Studies. Including the second, fourth, sixth and eighth semesters at the Bachelor's level of study. 270 students participated in the evaluation, while at the Master's level of studies, 30 students of the first semester participated. Besides the fact that there were questions about the performance of teachers and courses, there was also interest in the data on gender participation in the assessment.

Inclusion in evaluation by gender:

35.20% of male students participated in the evaluation and 62.20% of female students participated in the evaluation of professors and courses at the Bachelor level of studies. Whereas, 2.20 % of students have not declared their gender.

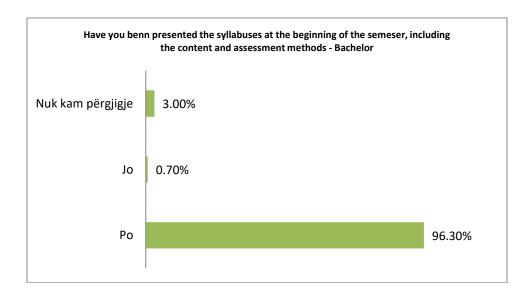

In Master level of studies, 80.00% of male students participated in the evaluation, 20% of female of students participated in evaluation.

If we compare the inclusion of students by gender at the Bachelor and Master level, it can be seen that at the Bachelor level of studies there is greater inclusion in the evaluation of the female gender compared to the male gender. While at the Master's level of studies, it is the opposite.

Also, one of the issues of great interest for the Faculty of Islamic Studies is the collection of information for the distribution of the syllabus by professors to students.

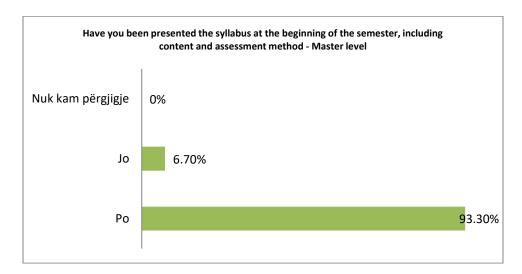

In the question of whether the syllabuses were distributed to the students at the beginning of the semester, the answers were as follows:

The assessment shows that at the Bachelor level of study, 96.3% of students answered the Yes option, while 0.7% answered No. 3% of the students who participated in the assessment did not answer this question.

This assessment can be considered as a good assessment and it can be concluded that the academic staff distribute the syllabus at the beginning of the semester. This also reflects the work of the management that has to do with sensitizing the academic staff about the importance of distributing the syllabus at the beginning of the semester.

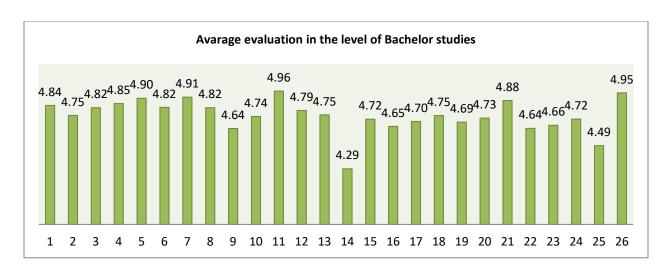

At the Master's level of studies, 93.30% of students answered the Yes option to the question "Have you been presented the syllabus at the beginning of the semester, including the content and assessment method, while 6.7% of students expressed "No" to the relevant question.

Although the majority of students have given positive answers, the management of the Faculty has to look into the reason why 6.7% of students gave a negative assessment and to improve this issue.

From the total number of respondents in the Faculty of Islamic Studies, at the Bachelor level of studies, the level of compliance of students varies between 4.29 and 4.96. These values indicate a high average agreement of students on the quality of the course and teaching performance at the program level.

The values generated in the figure below show the average compliance of the students for each question in the questionnaires by abstracting the individual evaluations of the Professors in particular.

In order to have a more detailed overview of the evaluation of courses and teachers, below is the figure which shows the satisfaction of the students with the courses and the performance of the academic staff at the level of the study program:

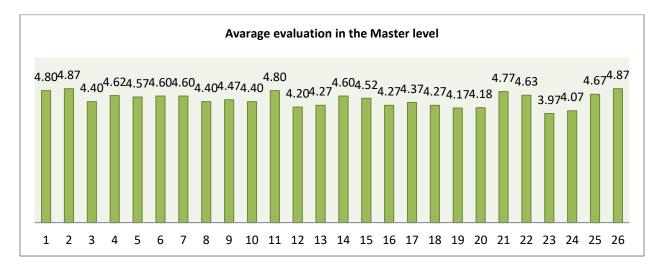

Below is the description of each pillar of the Figure, in order from 1 to 10:

- 1. The teacher's attendance during the semester has been regular
- 2. The teacher comes on time
- 3. The teacher has always come prepared to the lesson
- 4. The teacher has adhered to our school in the field of Aga'id-belief and Figh-jurisprudence
- 5. The teacher has fully adhered to the code of ethics in his behavior towards students

- 15. The teacher is able to convey to the students what is required to be explained from the subject syllabus
- 16. The teacher is creative in handling the topics, or in the examples he mentions
- 17. The teacher uses academic language when explaining the subject
- 18. The evaluation method is adapted to the nature of the subject
- 19. From the teacher I gained new skills and knowledge on how to be independent in using the knowledge I received
- 20. From the subject I gained new skills and knowledge on how to be independent in using the knowledge I received
- 21. Students have been informed in time about the evaluation criteria
- 22. Concretization tools and learning space have been sufficient and available

- 23. Course, you fulfilled your initial expectations
- 24. The subject has been successful and useful for students
- 25. The electronic material is sent to the students in time
- 26. The syllabus-plan of the subject was shown to the students in the first week

From the total number of respondents in the Faculty of Islamic Studies, at the Master's level of studies, the level of compliance of students varies between 3.97 and 4.87. These values indicate a high average agreement of students on the quality of the course and teaching performance at the program level.

The average ratings of courses and teachers at the level of the Master's study program are presented below:

Below is the description of each pillar of the Figure, according to the order from 1 to 26:

- 1. The teacher's attendance during the semester has been regular
- 2. The teacher comes on time
- 3. The teacher has always come prepared to the lesson

- 23. Course, you fulfilled your initial expectations
- 24. The subject has been successful and useful for students
- 25. The electronic material is sent to the students in time
- 26. The syllabus-plan of the subject was shown to the students in the first week

Clarification:

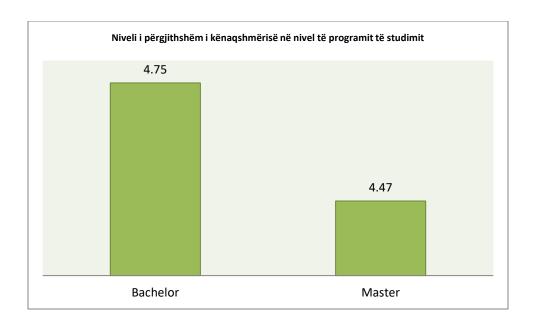

The assessment was made on the basis of questionnaires with optional choices (26 optional questions for Bachelor level and 26 questions for Master level of studies) and 3 open questions. For each optional question in the questionnaire, the student had the opportunity to circle one of the options from 1 (one) to 5 (five), where it means that: (1 = do not agree at all; 2 = disagree; 3 = neutral; 4 = agree; 5 = completely agree).

Meanwhile, in the open questions, the student had the opportunity to present his impressions as a comment, suggestion or any possible criticism.

The difference between the impressions of Bachelor and Master level students on specific questions

In the table above, we have presented student ratings for the specific questions as listed above. This table shows the difference in satisfaction of Bachelor and Master level students for the relevant questions. The biggest differences are seen in question 23, which is about the question: Has Lenda met your initial expectations? At the Master's level of studies, the average rating of students regarding this question is 3.97, while at the Bachelor's level the average rating is 4.66%. From the evaluation, it is observed that the students of the Master's level of studies are more critical regarding the initial fillings for the subject. In general, from this result we can conclude that the expectations of Master's students for the program are higher than those of the Bachelor's level. This may also happen due to their prior preparation from Bachelor's level studies, where knowledge of the field is more advanced and this causes higher expectations in Master's studies. But this issue should also be looked at from the context of the labor market, where after the completion of the master's level, it should be seen whether FISI students have the highest possibility of employment, if not, this also causes dissatisfaction with the expectations of students for the program in question.

While the overall level of satisfaction at the level of the program, there is no significant difference between the two programs, in general the level of satisfaction with the study programs at FSI can be considered relatively high.

3. Average evaluation of course and teachers for Bachelor level

The average compliance values generated by the evaluation (in the following table), such as: 5.00, 4.57 etc., represent the average ratings of the total compliance by the students for the relevant questions, the subject and the relevant professor. For example, the value 5.00 is considered as an average value which represents the student's agreement for the relevant question " The teacher's attendance during the semester has been regular ", this value means that, on average in total, the students fully agree with the question posed for the subject and the relevant professor.
